Appeals affecting scoring for the day or stage of the Contest, the referee panel should consider within 24 hours from the moment of lodging the appeal and no later than the signing of the protocol for the day (stage) of the Contest.

The decision of the referee panel is duly adopted, if a quorum is present and at least 70% of the referees are participating in the meeting, it must be recorded in a protocol and communicated to the appellant.

Referees are entitled to announce only the collective decision of the referees, registered in the protocol. After the decision is made, the Chief Referee and other referees are ineligible to express their views on controversial issues. The decision is final and binding upon the parties.

Commendation and reprimand

Commendation

For active and flawless fulfillment of duties of a referee, they may award referees with following:

awarding certificates, certificate of appreciation, memorable gifts found by Games' (The Contest's) Sponsors; decorations awarded by a standard procedure and commendation as well as financial awards.

Reprimand

For non-compliance with the rules of the Contest or unsportsmanship behavior, any referee could be reprimanded. The degree of reprimand (increase of penalty time, etc.) is established by the Regulations on the Contest.

unsportsmanship behavior:

neglect of Referee's command;
dishonorable reference to referee;
touching of a referee;
bad language and insulting gestures;
obstructing of team actions assessment;
delaying of a race (stage)oftheContest.

They may announce reprimand, cautioning and disqualification for a team whose representative interfere with the operations of referees, shows disrespect and disdain with officiating.

They may announce a warning, two cautioning notices. They may discharge the team when it receives third cautioning notice.

Thus gross violation of the rules of the competition allows the referee to disqualify a wrongdoer (a team).

Only the Chief Judge is entitled to disqualify or discharge a team from the competition after an open vote of the referee panel where the decision is enregistered in a protocol.

They may apply following measures for non-compliance or neglect implementation of referees duties or other violations:

a warning;
discharge from officiating;
temporary disqualification with determined deadline.

Decisions on the application of penalties to referees are made by the judicial brigade collectively by an open vote of the majority of votes with the registration of the protocol

They may apply disciplinary measures by the open vote decision making by a majority of votes and registration that decision in the protocol.

Requirements for equipment and organization of technical support during the Contest

The Contest is held using T-72 tanks or its analogues (hereinafter referred to as tank). They have to use for firing practice shells less than 1000 m per second muzzle velocity.

If there is a big difference in performances between the particular piece of military equipment and T-72 or look-alike tank, the relevant coefficients will be applied.

Maintenance, repair (if necessary), fueling and lubricating of the equipment are to be carried out by maintenance personnel at the combat vehicle pool of the unit. It is allowed to involve industry specialists and their repair organizations. After the team has received the military equipment and the document on technical condition has been put together, the responsibility for technical condition rests with the team. To avoid unauthorized access to military equipment, the teams shall cover tanks, place them under seals and put under security. Without having coordinated with manufacturer and the Chief Referee of the Contest it is prohibited to change factory settings, to break seals, to introduce changes in design. The tank with above mentioned violations is not allowed to participate in competition and the crew will be disqualified. Chief Referee of the Contest shall conduct scheduled and snap checks of technical condition of the military equipment. Final inspection, maintenance and preparation of tanks for the next day shall be performed in advance.

Practical training on the track is strictly prohibited.

Defeating of targets, designated according to Contest's conditions, shall continue until run-out of ammunitions. In case of delays during firing or when a crew is not able to expend all the ammunition due to any other reason, the Chief Referee of the Contest orders to unload the tank at a specially designated area (unload site) by unloading ammunition or shooting them at safety shield.

Variants of targets display are prepared in advance and put in envelopes, sealed and held by the Chief Referee without any distinctive marks. Just before the race the Chief referee gives the sealed envelope with the targets display variant to the Deputy Chief for Target Layout.

Examination of destroyed targets is performed by using technical means, visually, and if necessary with on-site close inspection.

If necessary, photo and video records to be used in order to determine destroyed targets. It is prohibited to replace targets until controversial issue is solved or referees return from target field.

Target is deemed to be destroyed in following cases:

- When shooting on armored target – if a target has direct hit of shells (a shell) or their substitutes, which have penetrated the target and left a hole, including distinctive trace open. If a shell (its substitute) has touched an edge of a target with its body, the target is not destroyed. If a target falls apart, it is deemed to be destroyed, if parts of the target have shell hits. If there are no obvious traces of direct hit or the target fell apart due to bound shot, this target is deemed to be not destroyed;

- When shooting on non-armored target – if a target has hole made by bullet or shell, including trace of fin and fragments.

If hit of a target is ambiguous and there is no strong indication of direct hit the target is deemed to be missed.

If conditions of the Contest prescribe to shoot on the move, each shot at halt (with full stop) will be evaluated as a miss.

Each missed target implies a penalty lap. Each unshelled target during gun fire sessions implies an extra penalty lap.

According to the results of shooting the Chief Referee of the Contest takes decision on giving a penalty laps to a crew. For violations of obstacle overcoming rules and safety requirements a crew will have to proceed to penalty site and penalty laps respectively.

The crew will have to perform an exercise “Walk-around inspection” at the penalty site according to annex №1.

To ensure correct performing of a penalty lap and penalty site the crew and referees on the track get the relevant command with indication of a number of appointed penalty laps.

A field referee has to direct a tank to the penalty lap making a signal to a crew.

If during the inspection it was determined, that the target was not engaged and a penalty lap was not appointed, then the best time of doing a penalty lap by this crew is added to the total runtime. If in course of race a crew did not make for a penalty lap, then the total runtime shall be increased for 1 minute.

If during the inspection it was determined, that the target was engaged and a penalty lap was appointed, then the time of making for a penalty lap by this crew is subtracted from the total runtime.

When leaving penalty lap a crew has to yield right of way to another tank, which moves directly. Pool out area from penalty lap is equipped with the sign “Yield ahead”.

In the case of a simultaneous finish of several crews, advantage is to be given to the crew with minimum amount of penalty points. With equity of penalty points, advantage is given the crew with minimum penalty laps.

Crews have to load up ammunition in accordance with operational requirements of a particular piece of military equipment in use.

With main tank' failure, it is to be replaced with backup from reserve. Replacement is to be done by command of the Chief Referee of the Contest with a help from backup tank's crew (driver) of a participating team. The backup tank has to move from start line to the place of breakdown on its track under control of backup crew (driver). Upon arrival the main crew has to change from broken tank to the one from backup, to report readiness and to continue race track by command of the Chief Referee. The march route of a backup tank can be changed in exceptional cases and by the decision of the Chief Referee.

If the tank's breakdown occurred through no fault of this crew, time of stop is not to be added to the total runtime. The decision on the reason of breakdown of a tank has to be taken by technical commission based on the inspection report (of technical condition) and has to be approved by the Chief Referee of the Contest. One copy of inspection report could be given to the representative of a team concerned.

Notwithstanding the reason of replacement of the main tank for one from backup, this team gets additional penalty lap or by the decision of the Chief Referee the time required to pass the penalty lap is to be added.

The list of breakdowns through a fault of participants of the Contest, which cause disqualification of a crew or imply the last place in the ranking table, is indicated in Contest Regulations.
